DE LAMAR DOTS.

The town is rather quiet just now; taking a breathing spell after the 4th celebration. John Wright expects to open his saloon, situate opposite Shier's drug store, on Saturday.

Warren's corral is about completed. A new building was completed there three days ago.

The new boarding house at the Jim Crow mine was opened last Sunday by Jack Wheatley.

Building goes ahead as fast as lumber can be got in, and Main street shows a steady improvement.

The final stakes have been placed on the Monitor-Jim Crow group of mines, and application for U. S. Patent will be made at once.

John Reese and Joe Bryant have quit work on the Paymaster claim. Reese will go to his claims near the Half Moon mine near Pioche and do assessment work, and may resume on the Paymaster later on.

The site for boring has been changed by the DeLamar Company from Cedar Wash to a point in the Valley nearly opposite the mouth of the Wash and about six miles from the mines. Here preparatory work of getting the engine and frame work in place is going on and boring may begin in about a week.

There are about 10,000 opium smokers in the City of New York, according to one of the witnesses before the Lexow Committee.

Our dispatches must be overdrawn somewhat. We read of troops, deputies and marshals firing into surging masses of strikers, but the resulting deaths and injuries are comparatively few. Either they are poor shots, the modern shooting iron isn't what it cracked up to be, or the associated press reporters lie like the devil.

Prospective candidates for county office are thickening. Already there is one for each office, and in some cases more than one. Will Lincoln hold a convention at all this year, or follow the course of some other counties and nominate for each office by petition as provided in the new law?

In the International yacht race the Briton on his own dung hill has wiped out the Yankee. The Britannia beat the Vigilant in three straight races, though the wind was not good in each. The Valkyrie, which sailed in this country last year, was entered also but was sunk in a collision with another racer.

Latest telegraphic information is to the effect that the great strike is practically at an end. It was brought about by governmental interference however and not by a settlement of existing difficulties between railroads and employees. Trains are moving with some regularity at all points in the east, and on the Southern Pacific system, service was resumed yesterday. Some of our delayed mail may reach us to-night; if not, then to-morrow surely.

"Strike" is fast growing to mean "arson, pillage and murder." Every strike nowadays, however earnestly proclaimed by its promoters, be for lawful redress, ends with murder and the general looting and destruction of property. The strikers have lost a very large amount in the wages they didn't earn during the past ten days, but they have wrecked and destroyed more property ten times over than their earnings would have amounted to. Somebody must pay for it all however and that somebody is the general and partly disinterested public.

The course and result of the recent strike in the loss of life and the wholesale destruction of property indicates that a re-distribution of U. S. troops might be made with good effect. We no longer have any frontier, and the troops should be quartered in the vicinity of large cities and manufacturing centers, to be at hand and ready to quell riots and disturbances such as have existed throughout the country for the past week, particularly at Chicago. The theory of state militia is all right, but in every riot of serious proportions, the militia is frequently in strong sympathy with the rioters and they are of little practical benefit. This is forcibly illustrated by this week's events at Chicago, where millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed, lives lost, and a reign of terror created in a very short space of time. The civil authorities appear powerless to cope with the disturbing element, and the rioters played at hide and seek with the militia sent out, but with U. S. troops, substituted, and notice issued that after a given hour no lawlessness would be permitted, the pillaging and plundering ends as suddenly as it begins. A mob will recognize only brute force and if it becomes necessary for a government to resort to it may as well be in its pronounced form on the first call as on the last.

Of late years the number of barristers in France has increased to an enormous extent. After ten years' struggling in his profession, a Paris advocate, unless he is favored by exceptional circumstances, hardly gains fees enough to enable him to pay for his license to practice, and the rent of his chambers. As for the closed profession of notaries and solicitors, it is impossible to get into them unless one be the son-in-law or nephew of some one who is ready to give up his office in favor of a relative. Only a few months since there was a vacancy among this class in Paris, and forty candidates, fully qualified by education and experience, presented themselves. Twenty-two of these were what might be termed hereditary lawyers and each possessed the financial qualifications of $100,000 cash down. Some of them were worth over $200,000. The selection was made of the wealthiest of the twenty-two.

Any American born citizen past 35 years old can be a candidate for president. There is no law against it. Doubtless that is the reason some men are put forward as candidates.

An exchange tells of a man who purchased a revolver for his wife and insisted on target practice, so that she could defend the home in case of his absence. After the bullet had been dug out of his leg and the cow buried he said he guessed she'd better shoot with an ax.

J. G. Shriver, a well-known resident of New Orleans, says: "The people of Mississippi-river State are happy this year because they have escaped floods and natural calamities. The sugar and cotton crops are in perfect condition and were never so large."

A lady died the other day in England, and in her will it was found that she had bequeathed the whole of her fortune, amounting to over $50,000, to the editor of a newspaper, the perusal of which had given her many happy hours. This excellent example should be universally followed.

Singular accidents frequently occur in a country office. Yesterday we went off and left the print-shop door open. On returning we found one of Montrose's hens roosting on top of the press. We began to "shoo" her out, but she wouldn't shoo worth a cent. On the contrary she fluttered and squawked in all directions but the right one, knocking type galley west and raising shiel without restriction, while we swore until old Mount Gilrest pulled a blanket of snow across his face to hide his blushes. A fiery, untamed hen in a print-shop is like an old maid at a christening—worse than a "bull in a china shop."—K.

"Money is like women in one respect," said Mr. Darley to his wife.

"That's so," replied she. "It's a good thing to have about the house."

"That wasn't the resemblance I had in mind," Mr. Darley went on.

"I suppose not."

"No; money is like women because money talks."

"Well, money has some well-known masculine characteristics too," retorted Mrs. Darley. "It gets tight. More than that, it requires the same remedy as its human exemplar in that case."

"And what is that?"

"The gold cure,"—JUDGE.

A young lawyer, just starting in his profession, hung out his sign in a town where there was only one other lawyer, an aged judge.

A close friend of his, thinking to get legal advice for nothing, called upon the young man and contrived in a sort of neighborly way to get some legal questions answered. Then, thinking the young man, he was about to leave, when the young man asked for a $5 fee. The old fellow went into a violent passion and swore he never would pay. The young lawyer told him he would sue him.

So the old fellow went down to see the judge and said:

"That young scamp that's just come in town! I dropped in to make a neighborly call on him, and he charged me $5 for legal advice."

"Served you right," said the judge.

"But have I got to pay it, judge?"

"Of course you have."

"Well, then," said the man, "I suppose I must," and he started off.

"Hold on," said the judge, "aren't you going to pay me?"

"Pay you? What for?"

"For legal advice."

"What do you charge?"

"Ten dollars."

The result was that the old fellow had to pay $5 to the young lawyer and $10 to the old one.—Toronto Globe.

Mrs. J. H. HORSYDER, 132 Pacific Ave., Santa Cruz, Cal., writes:

"When a girl at school, in Reading, Ohio, I had a severe attack of brain fever. On my recovery, I found myself perfectly bald, and, for a long time, I feared I should be permanently so. Friends urged me to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, on doing so, my hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years and always obtained satisfactory results. I know it is the best preparation for the hair that is made."

In Colorado a wife was granted a decree because her husband cut off her bangs.

A. Bauman, a capitalist of Johannesburg, South Africa, is floating an enterprise to recover $1,500,000 in stolen treasure. The gold is contained in two iron safes, which went down with the ship "Birkenhead," off the African coast, forty years ago.

It is related that it once fell to an Acheson man to break the news to a woman that her husband had been killed. "Do you know," he said, calling at her house, that with your light hair and pretty complexion you would break every heart in town if you dressed as a widow?" She blushed and laughed. "And you are one," he added; "your husband was just blown to atoms down in the boiler works, but then black is so becoming to you."—Acheson Globe.
